

Gerald L. Bruns is the William P. & Hazel B. White Professor (Emeritus) of English at the University of Notre Dame. Before coming to Notre Dame in 1985 he taught for fifteen years at the University of Iowa, and for five years at Ohio State University. His books include Modern Poetry and the Idea of Language: A Critical and Historical Study (Yale University Press, 1974), Inventions: Writing, Textuality, and Understanding in Literary History (Yale University Press, 1982), Heidegger's Estrangements: Language, Truth, and Poetry in the Later Writings (Yale University Press, 1988), Hermeneutics Ancient and Modern (Yale University Press, 1992), Maurice Blanchot: The Refusal of Philosophy (Johns Hopkins University Press, 1997), Tragic Thoughts at the End of Philosophy: Language, Literature, and Ethical Theory (Northwestern University Press, 1999), The Material of Poetry: Sketches for a Philosophical Poetics (University of Georgia Press, 2005), The Anarchy of Poetry and Philosophy: A Guide for the Unruly (Fordham University Press, 2006), On Ceasing to Be Human (Stanford University Press, 2010), and What Are Poets For? Studies in Contemporary Poetry and Poetics (University of Iowa Press, 2011). "Almost as If" and "If a Poet Could Talk We Could Not Understand Him" appeared in The Iowa Review, 37, no. 2 (Fall 2007). He currently lives in Shell Beach, California.