

I have spent most of my time in cities like Pittsburgh and Detroit, so urban landscapes like these figure prominently in my writing. Both of these poems are set in my neighborhood in Pittsburgh. Though it is within walking distance of Carnegie Mellon, where I teach, it often feels like it's a million miles away.